Gerard J. Bowen Jr. Decides to Run as an Independent

Gerard John Bowen Jr, candidate for the La. Congressional District 4 race, has decided to run as an Independent. After careful prayer and consideration and lengthy discussions with my wife, supporters, and potential-supporters, I've decided to run in this race as an Independent. There were several factors that led to this decision:

1. Many people I have talked to have said that they were unhappy with the new party primary system in place for this year's congressional race and feel that people should be able to vote for anyone regardless of party affiliation. By running as an Independent, that will allow anyone to vote for me, regardless of party affiliation.
2. Many people, including myself, are disenchanted with the 2-party system in general, and more specifically with the erosion of the conservative values that the Republican Party is supposed to represent.
3. As the only true outsider and the most conservative candidate in the race, I wanted the people to know that I am in this race to be the voice of the people and I'm not willing to tow a party-line just to get elected. I will not go to DC to make friends, I will go to make waves. I will stand for freedoms, smaller government, less spending, lower taxes, and my convictions will not be compromised by any political wheelings and dealings.
